

Great eats!

Late last week I visited a few fine eateries in the Cary area to photograph some of their finer offerings. You'd think I would learn one of these days NOT to eat lunch before photographing food. I was so stuffed by the time I left Skippers that I couldn't even think about eating another thing, much less two other things as I had two places left to photograph on my itinerary. I, like many others, tend to get absorbed into the fast food convenience diet but after visiting the below restaurants, I certainly am have other things on my mind then McBurgers! Here's a shot from each place:

<http://www.brianmullinsphotography.com>

© Copyright 2007 - Brian Mullins Photography

Skippers is, in my opinion, a well kept secret. I had driven by the restaurant many times and never stopped to check it out. Upon seeing the above "fish sandwich" and actually taking a few bites, I certainly will make time in the future to swing by. All food is prepared after you order, so it comes out piping hot and cooked as you like it. For a different dish (that's excellent), try the fish taco.